St. Mary's Church, Wareham, is one of the three remaining churches which now exist of the original famous eight churches of Wareham. It is a building of considerable antiquity, containing some interesting monuments and a curious hexagonal lead font dating from the 12th century. It was in this church that the body of Edward the Martyr was interred after his murder at Corfe Castle. His remains were afterwards transferred to Shaftesbury.

Dear R.
So glad to hear
you are enjoying your return. Hope you are having better weather than it is here.
I am feeling a bit better and little better home but and you soon love to both. Grace

So very glad to hear from Mary this a.m.
that you leave Feb 27th home. Now I hope you will soon be back to Norwich and think you will have a very good time there
